Last Year's Christmas Letter 2020...

"I know that, of late, you have carried a very heavy burden on your shoulders; and fears - lots and lots of them - have been slowing down the beating of your hearts. I know that you have been crying a lot more than usual, and worrying a lot more than yesterday. I know that your patience and endurance are showing signs of wear and tear; and confusion, frustration and anger have begun to damage your feelings, emotions, your inner peace. I know that you have seen enough broken and shattered lives, have heard enough wailings, have witnessed enough people suffering, people getting sick, people dying.

I know that you still can not wrap your head around the phenomena that, throughout the entire globe, public gatherings are forbidden. School children are confined to computer screens and monitors. Church's doors are closed. Masses are suspended. And even the dead are not having a proper good-bye.

I know that you have longed desperately for normalcy, for being able to wake up in the morning with assurances of safety, that everything is fine - that you no longer have to cover your face, that you don't have to wash your hands after every single time you touched a plastic grocery bag, that you no longer jump upon hearing someone coughing, that your heart no longer skip a beat when your body temperature registers a little rise, that you can freely shake hands, freely hug and embrace and go out and play and sing and dance with even strangers. I know that, of late, there have been too many tragedies, much too much unnecessary pain and agony, and much too much unhappiness.

Despite of what you might have been taught or led to believe, I am not a sick and sadistic old man who enjoys testing people or sending people temptations and trials and then has a good laugh when they stumble and fall. I am not a cold-hearted or a ruthless being who is infatuated with punishing people for their mistakes, faults, and sins. I have never and will never abandon, remain distant, or turn my back to you and leave you orphaned. You must therefore carve this divine truth in your mind and heart: boundless, unconditional, unchanged, and everlasting is my love for you.

I thought that, by sending my Son Jesus Christ onto the soil of this earth, you must know by now that whenever a human heart is broken, my heart too is shattered; that whenever a human life twisted in pain and sorrow, my heart too is soaked in agony. I thought that through the Birth of my Son Jesus, you must have realized by now that whenever any of the screaming and yelling and abuse and torture and bullet firing and bomb exploding and hatred and discrimination and categorization and dehumanization enters and poisons the human flesh, I too cried your every tear and suffered your every misery.

It hurts deeply to see you confused. It hurts to see you feeling lost and abandoned. It hurts to see you living in anxieties and fears. And it hurts to see you contemplating of giving up on hope, on faith, and on love - and on me.

That's why I want to tell you again and again: Have no fear. Keep the faith. Keep on hoping. And never be afraid. My Son Jesus had told you that repeatedly. His being born unrecognized on a cold, wintry night is a profound testimony that I do understand your agony and I do feel your pain. His being born into a world -- riddled, punctured and violated by the human hearts devoid of compassion and the violent grips of Satan -- is a definitive declaration of the most sacred and holy truth: there is no brokenness that love can not mend, no hurt that love can not comfort, no disease that love can not heal, no violence that love can not extinguish, no injustice that love can not exterminate, and no hatred that love can not disintegrate. Love conquers all things.

Therefore, do not let this Coronavirus build a wall around you and imprison you within. Do not allow this disease to strip you of your integrity and dignity. Do not allow this pandemic to rob you of your decency and humanity. Whenever you put a mask upon your face, prevent and allow not any unkind, merciless words to be on your tongue. Whenever you wash your hands, cleanse your heart and your soul of anger and violence. Whenever you hear of a person who is tested positive, who is hooked up to a ventilator, or who has just exhaled the last breath, say a prayer and make a solemn vow to yourselves that you are going to speak louder the words once uttered by Jesus, you are going to act more courageously the deeds once performed by Jesus, and as long as you live you will keep the Spirit of Jesus Christ alive in every fiber of your being.

My dearest people of the parish families of St. Clement's Church, I am here, not anywhere else but right next to you always. I am still your God. I am still in control of everything. All is going to be well. Definitely! Therefore, "Do not let your hearts be troubled. Have faith. And do not, do not be afraid."

Love you and will always love you,
God, your Father in heaven.
